Early childhood education, child care and family support helped parents take their first steps towards big change. Services were provided at no cost to student parents who are single and meet low-income guidelines. The only program offering this unique range of benefits, Angels' Place remains dedicated to families.

Meeting the needs of the entire family, children were actively engaged while their parents strived to reach their educational and career goals. Experiences in the first five years form a child's character enabling healthy growth and development. Our teachers created a curriculum that enriched a child's ability to advance through life, constructing a foundation for school readiness and emotional well-being.

Our exceptional Family Support Program promoted parent engagement. Parent education activities enlightened participants in areas of self-sufficiency, housing security, financial literacy and child development. Facing at risk challenges, families also received counseling, community referrals and help with practical needs like clothing, diapers, and other necessary supplies.

The combination of both programs has a ripple effect not only for our families but on our society as well. Ensuring parents and their children have access to resources needed and the education deserved, we build strong communities and successful parenting of the next generation.
